

EGR 9220: Teaching Engr'ng Practicum

This hands-on immersion style course provides an opportunity for students to practice the methods learned in EGR 9200 in a supervised environment. Students will work directly with a faculty mentor in their classroom environment observing and practicing in effective engineering teaching methods. Students will also have a course classroom environment in which they will prepare for the academic job search process.

Credits: 1.0